

Abstract

The present invention is related to a casing structure of a portable electronic device, the predetermined casing structure of the portable electronic device made by bendable metal. There is an installing room located in the casing for installing and positioning electronic elements. A positioning region located on the surface of the casing for installing external elements. An opening being on other surface excluding the surface with the positioning region so as to that the electronic elements entering to the installing room. An extendable covering body or folded plate is installed at the opening. A decoration member is attached to the surface of the casing of the present invention to enhance its mien, accompanying a more artistic visage and content the demand of customization.